Grandpa Mammoth

*World history does not begin here with me, it started long before that.
But I'm the one whose going to tell the story.
I live ages ago, in the middle of the Stone Age. On the other hand – it's not so long ago, only a thousand mothers and fathers and grandmas and grandpas, and great-grandmas and great-grandpas away from you.*

This is the beginning of Granddad Mammoth, a narrative non-fiction book that brings our world history to life. While looking at the beautiful illustrations, the storyteller, Granddad Mammoth, tells with a great sense of humour about the people and the things that you see. Because he starts by himself and stays close to the world around him, housing, food, things to play, work, it's very easy for children to go along and let themselves be guided from the Stone Age up to nowadays.

Ritterburg

Ist das nicht eine hübsche kleine Burg?
Wir hatten immer einen Sinn fürs Schöne.
Wenn man oben auf dem Turm stand,
sah man ringsherum kein anderes Bauwerk.
Und von unten konnte jeder gleich erkennen, wer in dieser Gegend Chef war.

Mein Enkel war ein bärenstarker Kerl, mit einem Bart, ein bisschen so wie meiner.
Er war noch gar nicht lange Burghesitzer.
Jetzt hatte er das größte Pferd von allen.
Mit dem Schlachtröss rit er durch die Lande und seine Bauern winkten ihren neuen Herren zu.

Wenn er wieder weg war, waren sie erleichtert,
denn es gab Gerüchte über ihn.
Es hieß, er war in einer Vollmondnacht zu Fuß als Gast auf dieser Burg erschienen.
Der alte Burgherr war seitdem verschwunden und niemand wusste, wo er war.

Bernd Mölck Tassel and Dieter Böge have created a lot of books together and won several awards, including a nomination for the German Youth Literature Prize.

In this extraordinary book it is as if you're thrown back in time and experience how life was then. And thus history comes to life.
